Who is Annika Eiremo?:

Many people have sent me e-mails as to who this mysterious person is. Actually only one person asked about her. Anyways, Annika, a KCl-er from last year, has helped out Isaac, last year's Comm. Mgr, publish the TP by submitting jokes every week. It has been the tradition at the TP to publish the corniest jokes out in the universe to bring you lame satisfaction that only these jokes can bring. It is my great pleasure to have Annika back on the TP staff for a second year in a row.

On a side note, Annika is an amazing fencer, and if you hear about the PENN women's fencing team, she's the one that's raking in the medals. She's going to the next summer Olympics in Beijing and she's excited about that, I hope. Anyways, that's all about Annika and enjoy her jokes on the right... ->

Classes have started. It's like the twilight zone. Everyone at Penn dresses and acts the same. It's just like that Alfred Hitchcock movie you saw under duress on Channel 11. You ask yourself why you, _____ (insert name), are standing out in the crowd. Here's how you, a freshman, can become part of the zombisque, conformist tradition that rampages wildly at Penn. Have a gander.

1. The flipped-up collar:

The status symbol for most Penn guys. A flipped-up collar not only functions as a guard for preventing ketchup stains on one's neck, but also acts as a metaphoric 9'x 9' signal/ barrier that screams "Don't talk to me." Works well with pink polo shirts or any other color that would normally appear offensive outside the Penn realm.

2. Designer handbags:

Louis Vuitton. Chanel. Gucci. Prada. It seems that every lady at Penn and their mom carries designer, high street handbags. Counterfeits, I think not. It has been rumoured that the actual bag actually has more worth than what is contained within the bag. See how many you can spot when you are eating a $10 sandwich at Au Bon Pain, located conveniently next to Locust walk, the catwalk of the campus.

3. Burberry scarfs:

Again, everyone and their mom has this item. These will be popping up like weasels in the springtime come late October and November.

4. Talking on the cell phone while having a stroll on Locust walk:

Feel important. It's the best way to talk to every one of your two friends while you're walking to your next class. It's a great way to show the entire world that you yourself are the king/queen of popularity. Doubly great if one takes the cell phone out of the designer handbag. Again, eat lunch outside of Au Bon Pain to count how many people do this.

So now, I have convinced you to act according to what I just wrote. Actually don't. Don't become a zombie consumerist lover. Conform to not conforming. Wear your vintage, thrift store clothes. Sport those $3 dollar sunglasses you got at CVS. Moral of the story: Be yourself.

'Til next time.

Franky Lee, your Comm. mgr.

Jokes from Annika!

Q: What is brown, long, and sticky?
A: A Stick!

Q: Why did the monkey fall out the tree?
A: Because it was dead!

Q: What do you do with a dog with no legs?
A: Take it for a drag!

Q: What's red and invisible?
A: No tomatoes!

Hahahahahah....
